The Spring Road Properties are "Everything a Home Should Be"—much that other homes are not.

Their handsome exteriors are very imposing, but it is inside where they are vastly superior—and it is well to remember that we live on the inside and not on the outside of a home.

The artistic arrangement of the interior is made doubly attractive by such extra-added features as a fireplace with art-mantel in the parlor and another in the dining room, while great carved columns support the arch that leads from the hall to the parlor and the one that separates the parlor from the dining room.

View of parlor, looking toward dining room. Note fireplace in each room.

REACH THE FINALS

Large Crowd Witnesses Play in Chevy Chase Tourney.

Perfect weather and a large and enthusiastic gallery greeted the players yesterday afternoon at the Chevy Chase Club's closed spring tennis tournament. The tourney has progressed nicely, and in two out of the four classes the semi-finals have been played and the final round will be played this afternoon. In the other two classes the semi-finals will probably be decided today, and the finals Monday, at which time the men's scratch singles, consolation, the women's doubles and the mixed doubles will be started.

The feature match of yesterday's play came in the men's doubles, in the second round, when Grosvenor and McClung (minus 20) defeated Morgan and Morgan (minus 15) two out of three interesting sets, 6-1, 4-4 and 6-3. It was really the superior steadiness of the veteran pair which gained them the decision, as the youngsters played almost as good a game, but their inexperience and lack of tournament work plainly showed, and they fell down at critical stages. The winners are old hands at the game, McClung being the present club champion and Grosvenor being a two-time winner of the same honor.

In the opening set the brothers plainly showed a bad case of "stage fright" and they lost in short order, taking but a single game. The second set found them playing much better tennis. They captured the first four games by sheer force, playing the veterans completely off their feet. After losing the next, the sixth game fell to their lot, making the score 5-1 in their favor. It was about this time that their followers experienced something like heart failure, when McClung and Grosvenor got busy and took the next three, bringing the score to 5-4. The youngsters had any number of chances to take this set by a single point, but this point was not forthcoming. In fact, in the eighth game the score was 40-love in their favor and yet they lost it. They finally captured the tenth game, which gave them the second set 6-4.

Grosvenor and McClung came right back in the third and deciding set, and play as they might the Morgans could not "stem the tide" of defeat, and they lost, 6-3. This win puts the victors in the semi-finals.

In the men's singles, scratch, the semi-final round was completed, J. Uphur Moorehead and W. D. Wilcox turning up the winners.

Wilcox's match with W. L. Littlefield in the same round made up in interest what was lacking in the Moorehead-Calvert game. The men were very evenly matched, as is attested by the fact that two of the sets were deuce ones, calling for extra games. Wilcox captured the necessary successive points to give him the decision. Littlefield finally won the second set, 7-5. He had an excellent chance to capture the third, which would have given him the decision and the right to meet J. U. Moorehead in the final, but he was unable to do so.

The match, which would have given him the match, but this point was not forthcoming and Wilcox finally won the match, and then, after hanging around the deuce mark for several games, landed enough points to gain the decision, 8-6.

The Misses Greble finished the feature match in the women's class, when they fought it out in the semi-final round, 6-1 in their favor. It was about this time that their followers experienced something like heart failure, when McClung and Grosvenor got busy and took the next three, bringing the score to 5-4. EXTENDS ITS WORK

American Peace Society Plans for a Federation.

REQUESTS OTHERS TO JOIN

Additional Members of Board of Directors to Come From Similar Organizations.

At the eighty-fourth annual meeting of the American Peace Society at the Raleigh Hotel yesterday afternoon plans were adopted for a federation of all the peace societies of the United States. This is to be brought about by the appointment of members of well known peace societies of the country as additional members of the board of directors of the American Peace Society. The board of directors will then be in effect a national council of peace and arbitration.

A revised constitution was adopted by the society permitting these changes in its board of directors, and the society was reorganized on a representative basis, the various societies in different states and cities becoming constituent organizations. The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the Mohonk Arbitration Conference, the World Peace Foundation, the American Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes and other peace organizations not on a membership basis were asked to co-operate.

Senator Burton President.

Senator Theodore E. Burton was chosen president and Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood secretary. Twelve directors were elected at large and twelve others admitted from the following constituent organizations: New York Peace League, the Massachusetts Peace Society, the Pennsylvania Arbitration and Peace Society, the New Hampshire Peace Society, the American Peace Society, the Chicago Peace Society, the Buffalo Peace Society and the California Peace Society, each of which retains its independence in its own field of work.

An informal conference of some of the members of the board of directors will be held at Lake Mohonk next week.

The chief objects of the federation are closer co-operation among the various units, a clearing house for information and more adequate executive facilities. The following resolutions were adopted:

Regrets Defeat of Treaties.

"The American Peace Society regrets the defeat in the United States Senate of the arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France in the form which they were proposed by President Taft, and so earnestly championed by him, but expresses the hope that new treaties of a similar character will be presented for adoption. It believes in an arbitration system by which the United States government may refer to the Hague court or other arbitral tribunals all international differences of a justifiable nature."

The society will support by active co-operation all well directed efforts by the President and the Department of State in the promotion of the judicial settlement of international disputes and expressing the hope that the Moorehead-Dennis match this afternoon, in the final round for the championship.

PROPERTY YARD BATTLE

District Committee Has Failed to Report Bill for Abolishment.

The Virginia avenue property yard, belonging to the District government, on the square bounded by 6th, 7th, I and K streets southeast, was discussed before the District committee of the House yesterday, and, to the surprise of every one who has been attempting to legislate the yard out of existence, when the committee adjourned it was found that the property yard matter is where it was a year ago.

In other words, the bill to remove the property yard and to turn it into a part of Virginia avenue is still to be reported on.

City Heads Against Plan.

The Commissioners have been opposing the abolition of this property yard and the citizens of the southwest have been striving tooth and nail to have it wiped out on the grounds that it is an eyesore. The land it occupies was formerly the right of way of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and cuts through the block at 6th and I streets in a northeast direction.

Although the Commissioners flatly opposed the bill to abolish the property yard and make the old right of way a public street, the intention of the District committee some time ago was to have this bill reported favorably to the House. However, by some technicality, this report never actually reached the House. In view of the Commissioners' opposition to the bill, the committee saw a good chance to place the bill right where it was before, and the long struggle between citizens associations and the Commissioners can break out all over again. The news that this bill had never been actually reported was a surprise to many people who follow District legislation at the Capitol, as it was understood the bill had been placed on the calendar.

Withdraws Objections.

Representative Johnson, chairman of the committee, withdrew his long-standing objection to the extension of Underwood street northwest yesterday, and the bill to amend up that thoroughfare was ordered reported. Representative Johnson had previously held that the section is not built up enough to warrant the extension of the street to Westview avenue. The bill to extend Westview avenue was also given a favorable report.

The bill to license guides and peddlers was amended to apply to guides alone, and sent to the House in that shape. It provides that the Commissioners may appoint guides and remove their license, and charge a fee of $10 a year.

MEETS REQUIRED TEST BUT FAILS TO COUNT

Aviator Beachy Trying Out Curtiss Machine Designed for Government Use.

Lincoln Beachy, aviator, who has been in Washington for several days testing the new Curtiss biplane that has been submitted for acceptance by the government, made practically the required altitude test of the machine at College Park yesterday in the presence of the War Department board, consisting of Lieut. Harry Arnold, Lieut. Graham and Lieut. Leighton Hazelhurst. Capt. Charles de Forest Chandler, as commanding officer of the school, was present merely as a spectator.

Carries Required Weight.

The machinery had met all the official requirements during flights at Augusta, Ga., last winter, with the exception of the altitude test. This requires that the machine carry 2,000 feet in ten minutes, carrying a load of 450 pounds in addition to the aviator and fuel. The weight yesterday was distributed: Beachy, 130½ pounds; passenger, Sergt. Izarick, 165 pounds; lead, 150½ pounds; gasoline, 82 pounds; oil, 200 feet in ten minutes, carrying a load of 450 pounds in addition to the aviator and fuel. The weight yesterday was distributed: Beachy, 130½ pounds; passenger, Sergt. Izarick, 165 pounds; lead, 150½ pounds; gasoline, 82 pounds; oil, 200 feet in ten minutes, carrying a load of 450 pounds in addition to the aviator and fuel.

There was a slight breeze when the start was made, and the machine climbed easily, making 2,300 feet in ten minutes. The aviator, however, was very close to the requirements and was made with considerably more weight than was required. The machine carried 450 pounds, the aneroid on Sergt. Izarick's wrist was registering satisfactorily, the official record being 2,000 feet in ten minutes and the test was a success.

Conditions Unfavorable.

Beachy was willing to try out the machine, but the conditions were not favorable. The wind was very strong when the trial was made, and after going up 250 yards, he saw there was no likelihood of coming inside the time limit and returned to the field.

Beachy went out to College Park early this morning, but the conditions were not favorable. He made few short flights and returned the machine to his hangar. If conditions are favorable another test will be made this afternoon.

Mr. Price had been ill throughout the period of his residence in Washington.
